

Only Questions

How did I get to be so small? Where along the way did I lose my sense of greatness?

How did I come to believe in limitations without ever testing my capabilities?

How can I settle to be any less than I am?

Where did it all begin?

How can I help myself see the infinite capacity that is within me?

I say I believe in God, and yet can I not see the contradiction of my own actions?

I say I believe in a loving God, but then how can I also believe the lies others tell me that I am less than whole?

When I see greatness in others, can I not see the same greatness in myself?

Do I believe that God would withhold from me the same qualities that I admire in others?

Do I not believe that my ability to see those qualities in someone else is the first step to discovering those qualities in myself?

Can I no longer see the light of God's Love that shines from every newborn's eyes?

Can I not feel the power of Unconditional Love that embraces my being whenever a baby gazes at me?

When is it that I quit seeing that light?

When is it that I began to notice more the boundaries of the body than the infinity of the soul?

When does each child of divine birth fall from my grace?

Where does the fear that I sense in me come from?

What is it that I am afraid of?

How have the demons of the dark come to dwell where once there was only light?

How deep is the darkness that envelopes my soul?

Can I seek the light that I see in others and reignite the inner light that is within me?

Every acorn has within it the mightiness of a great oak, how will I live?

How will I live into the greatness that is in me?

How will you live into the greatness that is in you?